

Scruffy Eagle Lyrics

"ONE AMONG MANY"

Background Info:

This is from the "Havva Slice - Uh, Life" collection. I've recorded a couple of different versions of this song. The lyrics were originally written in 2000, although no chords were set until 4 years later, in 2004. It's slowly evolved since then, to include a violin part which I'm still working on mastering.

A drop of rain falls in the river
like a single tear from a weeping God
- for loneliness, and broken hearts
- for greed, and all the pain it's caused.

It was just one among many, shed for what we've become.
It was just one among many, that have come and then gone.

An orange leaf drifts down from on high like a single sigh from a patient God
- for all the failures seen of spirit
- for all the faded dreams, now done.

It was just one among many, falling lost and alone.
It was just one among many - season of change had begun.

I went back to that old town, and wandered around.
I walked the streets, and looked at the shops -
Buttercup, in a turbulent ocean of clowns.

Remembering what we did, and how it was
- how we argued, and couldn't fix love,...

I was just one among many, that you abused for your fun.
You were just one among many, using your love, like a gun.

Nobody noticed, when heaven opened.
We were so pre-occupied with our daily lives
- with all the things that were unfinished,
- and, all the things not yet begun.

It was just one among many, reaching out to us all.
It was just one among many, that has come and then gone.

A tiny pine sprouts deep in the woods,
like a single kiss, from a loving God
- for all the children born in one day
- for all the futures, making more love.

It was just one among many, reaching up for the sky.
Each one, one among many - learning how to get by.

I was just one among many.

You were just one among many.

We are each one among many.

You were just one among many.

I was just one among many,
that has come and then gone.
